

Equipment Breakdown Coverage

Equipment Breakdown coverage protects the heart of a business: the equipment and technology that your accounts depend upon. Sure, they have property insurance. But property insurance will not cover short-circuit damage to computers. Nor does it pay for mechanical breakdown to air conditioning or refrigeration systems. And it excludes electrical arcing damage. In short, it does not cover a lot of the risks that can damage equipment.

Your clients have a lot invested in equipment. When it is damaged it can cost thousands to repair or replace it.

Equipment Breakdown coverage is designed to pay for physical damage to covered equipment caused by risks such as electrical arcing, mechanical breakdown, power surges and motor burnout. It pays for:

- Short circuits/electrical arcing, power surges and electrical disturbances
- Mechanical Breakdown
- Motor Burnout
- Boiler Damage
- Operator Error
